N.S. VOL. 57 NO. 11A WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 2014, 13:30

Bill No. 152 – The Victims of Domestic Violence Consequential Amendment Act, 2014

Mr. Forbes: Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I rise today to enter into the debate on Bill No. 152, The Victims of Domestic Violence Consequential Amendment Act, 2014. And in many ways I understand this is simply amending the bilingual Queen's Bench Act, 1998 to update the reference in that Act to make sure the language is consistent through, and obviously that makes good sense.

And so as I said earlier, my remarks about Bill 144, that this is a timely piece of discussion, and I think we'll be focusing on Bill 144 because that really sets the piece out. Whatever comes out of that, then we'll have to look for the consequential amendments. But generally speaking, I think that we have no further comment on the consequential amendments and so I'd like to move adjournment of Bill 152, The Victims of Domestic Violence Consequential Amendment Act, 2014. Thank you very much.
